NEW DRAMAToxic Town*From Thursday 27 February, Netflix

painful operations, Susan begins to twig that his condition isn't an isolated case, and she is eventually compelled to take on what becomes a fight for justice over several years.

JOINING THE DOTS

'Susan meets several mothers whose kids have been born with limb differences like Connor, and it just doesn't seem right,' explains Whittaker. 'Then she's contacted by a journalist who has started to see similarities, too. It's pre-internet, pre-Facebook, so it happens slowly by word of mouth, but she starts to connect the dots.'

Banding together with fellow Corby mums Tracey (Aimee Lou Wood), Pattie (Karla Crome) and Maggie (Claudia Jessie), Susan hires lawyer Des Collins (Rory Kinnear), who believes that Corby Borough Council mishandled toxic waste while cleaning up the town's former steelworks, affecting the unborn children of some mothers.

LEGAL BATTLE

As the story unfolds, the council, led by Roy Thomas (Brendan Coyle), fights back, making for a long, hard legal battle.

'Des is originally from Corby and he understands what coming from that area does to you in terms of your psyche,' says The Diplomat star Kinnear. 'Also, his background as a lawyer comes from holding powerful companies to account for the things they've done wrong.'

'The energy, the fire and the passion comes from Susan and the other mothers, but Des is there to unpick a particularly difficult lock'

Maggie Mahon
Claudia Jessie

Maggie's son Sam is born with a foot defect. But her husband works as a driver for the council contractor and fears for his job if Maggie joins the women's fight for the truth.

Women of STEEL

Jodie Whittaker plays an ordinary mum fighting for justice in a powerful true story

As well as a cracking 1990s soundtrack, the dream cast also includes Ben Batt (Domina), Joe Dempsie (Game of Thrones), Michael Socha (This Is England) and Trainspotting and The Full Monty favourite Robert Carlyle as councillor turned whistleblower Sam Hagen.

FIGHTING SPIRIT

Yet Whittaker says that, at its heart, the drama is an inspirational story about young mothers fighting tirelessly for their children.

'You see their emotional journey and the toll the pursuit of the truth takes on them,' she explains. 'What struck me most is that I'd never heard of this story before. But I wanted to pay tribute to this group of women who had to fight so hard for justice. They didn't give up despite how long it took and how heartbreaking the fight was.'

NEW DRAMA

Dope Girls

Saturday, 9.15pm, BBC1
(box set, BBC iPlayer)

An industrial estate in Bridgend, South Wales, has been transformed into the vibrant world of London's Soho in 1918, with cobbled streets, market stalls and busy nightclubs, as TV&Satellite Week visits the set of BBC1's uncompromising period drama Dope Girls.

Inspired by Marek Kohn's non-fiction book of the same name, the Peaky Blinders-style six-parter begins just as World War One is ending, and details the era's London nightlife, criminal underworld and burgeoning drugs trade.

At the heart of the drama is spirited Kate Galloway, played by Julianne Nicholson, who is evicted from her countryside home following her husband's death. With nowhere else to go, cash-strapped Kate and her unsettled teenage daughter Evie (Eilidh Fisher), who has been at boarding school, head to London to stay with Kate's estranged eldest child, flamboyant Billie Cassidy (Umi Myers), a dancer at an underground Soho nightclub.

NEW START

'I've never been given the opportunity to play a role like Kate with all that she gets to do,' teases Paradise and Mare of Easttown star Nicholson, 53, as she joins us during a break in filming.

'When she comes to London, it's about survival and keeping Evie safe, and Billie's the one person she can reach out to. They have a complicated relationship, but they need each other. And then things happen that require her to stay...'

As Kate is drawn further into the Soho underworld and its heady melting pot of class, race, sexuality and illicit after-hours drinking, she sets up her own nightclub, The 33, catering for those who are eager to party and forget the harrowing days of war. But crime family the Saluccis, led by ruthless matriarch Isabella (Geraldine James), spell danger.

'The presence of the Saluccis is scary, but Soho's also exciting for Kate. Being in a place with colour, life and creativity stirs something in her that's not been there for decades. This is a path to a different life – one she could thrive in,' shares Nicholson.

'At her club, everyone's welcome.

SUCKED IN

As Kate battles to establish her club, she also needs to evade the police, who are determined to stop drugs and vice spreading through Soho, and, in a radical experiment, the first female officers are recruited. Troubled Violet Davies (Eliza Scanlen), one of the initial intake, is sent undercover as part of an investigation, but when she, too, gets sucked into this hedonistic world, she faces difficult choices.

'The first female police officers are the gentle arm of the law – they weaponise their femininity as part of the war on drugs,' explains Little Women's Scanlen, 26. 'After World War One, everyone's high on elation and liberation – but London's unravelling.

'Violet lost her sister to drugs and wants to do good. But when she's undercover, she finds herself identifying with this motley crew of women more than she anticipated, and a conflict develops within her.'

With the drama taking an imaginative and heightened look at life in Soho at the time, the cast enjoyed shining a spotlight on the often forgotten role of women of that era.

'To see women take over the nightlife back then has been fascinating,' reflects Nicholson. 'It's turning this period upside down.'

Aimee Lou Wood on the growing tensions in Thailand

COMEDY DRAMA

The White Lotus

Monday, 9pm, Sky Atlantic

Most actors would give their back teeth to land a role in hit comedy-drama anthology The White Lotus – and Sex Education star Aimee Lou Wood was no exception.

Winning the part of hotel guest Chelsea was a dream come true for Wood, who was a huge fan of the show. But she admits that when the opportunity to audition came along, her nerves almost got the better of her.

'I'd never experienced auditioning for something that I was already a fan of before, and I was overwhelmed,' she recalls. 'I was really scared, but then I went for it – and luckily it all happened quite quickly. I think if it had stretched out over a long time, I would have gone mad!'

Charlotte Le Bon as Chloe

befriending cool model Chloe (Charlotte Le Bon), eternal optimist Chelsea is looking at her relationship with irascible older boyfriend Rick (Walton Goggins) in a slightly different light.

'Chelsea truly believes that fate has brought them together,' says Wood, 30. 'As an actor, I had to just be completely from her point of view and not judge her relationship at all. But they do go on a real journey together, which I think will be surprising. I'm excited to see what people think of their relationship.'

The experience of filming on location in Thailand more than lived up to Wood's expectations, and there was one particular element of the show that she was excited to get stuck into.

'My favourite scenes were the breakfasts and dinners, because they are so iconic,' she says. 'I used to love watching those scenes with all the subtext and passive aggression and simmering tension.'

'So sitting opposite Walton and doing those scenes was the most "pinch me" moment. It was so exciting to be one of those actors getting to do Mike White's incredible dialogue.'

NEW COMEDY DRAMA

Small Town, Big Story

Thu, 9pm, Sky Atlantic & Sky Max
(box set, Sky Box Sets & NOW)

Mad Men star Christina Hendricks plays a woman who returns to her Irish home town to face an astonishing secret that's haunted her for decades in Sky's warm-hearted comedy drama Small Town, Big Story.

Created by The IT Crowd and Moone Boy star Chris O'Dowd, the six-part series begins when hotshot LA-based producer Wendy Patterson (Hendricks) heads back to the small town of Drumbán to film a Game of Thrones-style fantasy TV series. However, the arrival of the big-budget production also throws a spotlight on the town and a mysterious extraterrestrial event that has been kept secret for 25 years.

Soon after returning home, Wendy bumps into an old flame, local doctor Séamus Proctor (Paddy Considine), who was with her on the night of the millennium when they were both abducted by aliens – an event that changed Wendy's life for ever.

LAUGHING STOCK

'Séamus completely denied that this alien abduction ever happened,' says Hendricks, 49. 'He betrayed Wendy in front of her family and the whole town and made her a laughing stock.

'Now that she's back, she says to him, "I feel like I've been going crazy for years. Everyone thinks I'm nuts. You're the only one who can help me out of this crisis." Disturbingly, other-worldly things are occurring in Drumbán once again. However, the locals are far more interested in the glitz and glamour of the Hollywood production than the birds that are mysteriously falling from the sky...

PRODUCTION PRESSURE

'I've seen the impact that these big productions can have on small towns first-hand. Initially, everything is fantastic for the residents. It's exciting and a buzz. Then, eventually, it's, "Argh, they're blocking my driveway again,"

There are strange events in the town

'I was trapped in this little room during lockdown and I wanted something cosmic'

CHRIS O'DOWD

smiles O'Dowd, 45, who filmed the series in his home town of Boyle – which was also used as a location for three seasons of his sitcom Moone Boy.

'The thing I found funny during filming was that people from the town would walk around in their best clothes with more make-up on than usual – just in case they got caught by the camera.'

The starry cast also includes Eileen Walsh as Séamus' wife, Catherine, who is having an affair with fellow teacher Matt (Peter McGann). Meanwhile, The Wire's Clarke Peters plays Hollywood boss Chet, who has entrusted Wendy with one of the studio's biggest projects, and Tim Heidecker is Wendy's producer colleague Brad, who wonders if Wendy has allowed her heart to rule her head when choosing Drumbán as a filming location.

O'Dowd, who has a cameo role in the series as fantasy author Jack E. McCarthy, wrote the series a few years ago while he was working in Toronto on a film that was held up during lockdown.

'The production had stopped, so I was trapped in this little room all day and taking walks in a snow-swept ravine, which reminded me of where I'd grown up in Ireland,' he reveals. 'I was bored out of my skull, feeling very untethered and I wanted to feel something cosmic – so I suppose all of that went into this story.'

Jersey boy

Damien Molony stars in a reboot of Bergerac

NEW CRIME DRAMA

Bergerac

Thursday, 9pm, U&Drama (box set, U)

Brassic's Damien Molony takes on the role of Jersey detective Jim Bergerac this week in a hotly anticipated reboot of the 1980s BBC1 cop drama.

The six-part series, penned by Being Human creator Toby Whithouse, finds the detective struggling with alcoholism following his wife's death. However, after his teenage daughter Kim (Chloé Sweetlove) moves in with her grandmother Charlie (Zoë Wanamaker) for more stability, Jim realises his life needs to change.

A lifeline comes along in the form of a high-profile case when the daughter-in-law of wealthy tycoon Arthur Wakefield (Philip Glenister) is murdered, and Jim asks to be assigned to the investigation – much to the frustration of lead detective Barney Crozier (Robert Gilbert).

TV&Satellite Week joined Molony, who turns 41 on 21 February, to find out more...

had done, but I did have the privilege of driving the iconic Triumph Roadster. We couldn't have reimagined this series without paying homage to the original, and the car beautifully bridges the two.

How does your Jim Bergerac differ from the original?

In the original series, Jim and his wife are divorced, but in our version, he's a bereaved widower who's hit rock bottom and is masquerading as a functioning human being. It's a cop show with a fantastic whodunnit, but at its core, it's about a heartbroken dad who can't look after his daughter.

How was filming the series on location in Jersey?

Everyone was so happy that it was back. People had such wonderful memories – the amount of times I'd get into a taxi and they'd say, 'Let me tell you about the time I had John Nettles in the back of my cab...' And Jersey is beautiful. I loved my time there.

Did you reach out to John Nettles after accepting the role?

I didn't touch base with John until after we had shot it. He did such an unbelievable job for 10 years. He told me, 'Bergerac has been incredibly good to me; I hope it is as good to you' – which I thought was a really lovely sentiment.

accident caused by his alcoholism. It was an instant hit with BBC1 viewers and made Nettles, now aged 81, a household name.

Was there any pressure in taking on such an iconic role?

magic acts and those weird meeting kiosks that have been polluting our motorway service stations. It's always a complete potpourri of stuff.

In the first episode, the studio lights go out. Have you ever had a live mishap?

In the first series, I fainted! It was the last recording of two shows, and I hadn't had enough to eat or drink. I had a little break and then carried on.

It's also your 54th birthday in March. Do you have any special plans?

I don't but, weirdly, if I ever do a gig on my birthday, everyone seems surprised that I'm working. But nobody else in any job has the day off because it's their birthday.

Actually, some companies do give employees time off for their birthdays...

No, they don't! When did that happen!? Right, well the world's gone mad. That's a new source for my stand-up material and I shall be looking into that...

NEW ENTERTAINMENT

Britain's Got Talent

Saturday, 7pm, ITV1

Get ready to marvel at more sensational singers, awe-inspiring acrobats and pole-dancing seagulls (yes, really!) as ITV1's long-running entertainment show Britain's Got Talent returns for a new run.

This time, auditions for the 18th series move to Blackpool, where hosts Ant McPartlin and Declan Donnelly will be waiting in the wings as hopefuls try to impress the judges with their skills.

'The audiences in Blackpool have been really vocal – they really get behind the acts, cheering, asking for Golden Buzzers, and booing the judges,' smiles McPartlin. 'They've been like a fifth judge.'

BGT performances have amassed over 24 billion views on YouTube, and internet sensation KSI – who will be taking the place of judge Bruno Tonioli for some of the audition shows – knows better than most how to create that viral moment.

'It takes a lot to impress me,' says KSI. 'Being able to get an audition is a huge step, then being on TV is another big step, but you've got to make a statement. There's got to be a reason for people to want to see you – that's what makes things go viral.'

Once again, the judges and the hosts will get to hit the Golden Buzzer, each sending an act straight through to the live semi-finals.

All the hopefuls want to follow in the footsteps of last year's winner, singer Sydnie Christmas, and bag a spot at the Royal Variety Performance. And, as always, viewers should expect the unexpected...

'Sometimes you'll see the acts backstage and it's such an eclectic and contrasting mix of performers,' says Donnelly. 'We look at each other and say: "Only on Britain's Got Talent!"'

What else can I watch?

Unforgotten

Sunday & Monday, 9pm, ITV1

As the crime drama reaches its finale, there's a breakthrough in the cold-case murder for Jess (Sinéad Keenan) and Sunny (Sanjeev Bhaskar, pictured with Keenan) when a new witness reveals he saw suspicious activity at the marshland where the victim's body parts were found. Suspects Marty and Asif are taken into custody while acerbic history lecturer Juliet is determined her daughter, Taylor, should not speak to the police. What is Juliet hiding?

Grantchester

Wednesday, 9pm, ITV1

The current run ends as Geordie and Alphie investigate charismatic preacher Sam White (Elliot Warren, left), who has acquired cult-like status in Grantchester. But is Sam all that he seems? 'Geordie and Alphie investigate what looks like a suicide,' reveals Robson Green, who plays Geordie. 'Evidence leads them to Sam and opens up a whole can of worms with explosive consequences.'

Extraordinary Portraits with Bill Bailey

Friday, 7.30pm, BBC1

This week, host Bill Bailey asks sculptor Hywel Pratley to capture the likeness of former paratrooper Christian Lewis (far left, with Bailey and Pratley), who walked 19,000 miles around the UK coastline, raising more than £500,000 for SSAFA, the Armed Forces charity that helped him when he was at his lowest.

The Apprentice

Thursday, 9pm, BBC1

Easter comes early for the remaining candidates as they have a crack at creating and branding a new chocolate Easter egg, then pitching it to industry buyers. Baroness Karren Brady and Tim Campbell will have their beady eyes on the challenge and report back to Lord Alan Sugar (centre, with Brady and Campbell) on who's been egg-ceptional. But who will be told to hop off?

A hard-hitting medical drama follows doctors in a struggling German hospital

Dr Parker faces
tough challenges

The series shows
the chaos of a busy
ER department

State of emergency

DOCTOR'S ORDERS

Berlin ER has been co-created by British writer Samuel Jefferson, drawing on his background as a one-time A&E doctor.

'Because of the trauma of the job, I'd never wanted to write a medical show. But I had all these stories,' he says. 'The experience I'd had in the emergency room in the UK was shared by doctors we met in Germany and I wanted to show the reality of that life.

'Some medical series see doctors and nurses as superheroes, but medicine is less glamorous and shiny. It's about human beings struggling with themselves.'

tv+ Berlin ER

NEW Available: Wednesday 26 February
Genre: Drama Season: 1 Episodes: 8
(first two episodes from Wed 26 Feb, then weekly)

Life and death in a pressurised, underfunded and run-down emergency department is brought into the spotlight in Apple TV+'s fast-moving, unflinching German-language drama Berlin ER.

The eight-part series, which has English subtitles, centres on dedicated but troubled doctor Suzanna Parker (Haley Louise Jones), who causes a stir when she arrives to head up the ER at a busy hospital in a diverse and challenging area of the German capital.

Trying to make a fresh start after her old life in Munich imploded, Suzanna faces a baptism of fire when she realises that the department is juggling a multitude of harrowing cases without sufficient back-up or resources. And even though her plans for bringing about change are not well-received by her exhausted staff, as they work together through traumatic shifts, she begins to bond with them.

'This is like a hospital drama on steroids. It gets your pulse going,' reveals Jones, whose credits include the German version of crime drama Professor T. 'Suzanna loves her job and has high hopes for her new position. Things don't go as planned, but she has grit, resilience and determination. She's by the book, but from this team, she learns a new way of doing things.'

Among Suzanna's equally harassed new colleagues is talented, hard-living Dr Ben Weber (Slavko Popadić), who initially clashes with Suzanna over their different approaches to their work.

FULLY COMMITTED

'Ben's self-destructive and a rebel, but a brilliant surgeon. He's driven by his passion to help, but his passion also destroys him,' says Popadić. 'He does things his own way and has inner demons as he moves through moral grey zones, but I want the audience to go with him.'

To prepare for their roles and ensure authenticity, the cast underwent intensive training with real-life medics.

'The creators want viewers to really feel the pace and the chaos,' explains Popadić. 'So we spoke to a lot of doctors and nurses and we had a medical boot camp where we were shown the basics and also things like how you would speak to a patient.'

'We even learnt how to put on a glove with sweaty hands and make it look natural. It was challenging, but fun,' adds Jones, who has come away with a profound respect for the medical profession.

'I've got nurses in my family, so I had appreciation for their work already, but that has tripled. We still don't fully fathom the price they pay and how, out of a pure desire to help other people, they dedicate their lives to this job. We hope that this can shed a light on that.'

Queer Eye's Antoni Porowski takes Hollywood stars on culinary journeys

Disney+ No Taste Like Home with Antoni Porowski

NEW Available: Monday 24 February
Genre: Cookery Season: 1 Episodes: 6

Imagine a cross between Stanley Tucci's cookery travelogues and Who Do You Think You Are? and you'll get a flavour of Antoni Porowski's new Disney+ series No Taste Like Home.

'Food can tell you more about who you are and where you come from than you could ever imagine,' says Queer Eye food-and-wine expert Porowski, 40. 'So in this series we go back to celebrities' countries of origin and explore their family history through the lens of food. Then we introduce them to family ancestors they didn't necessarily know about.'

'The whole series is a sensory overload in the best way. You get to explore different countries, cultures and dishes.'

Also airing weekly on National Geographic (Wed, 10pm), the series begins with Porowski joining Little Women actor Florence Pugh for a UK tour. Starting in Oxford, they share a lunch of shepherd's pie with Pugh's mum and grandma, then travel to Thirsk for roast hogget and Yorkshire puddings, to Whitby for kipper

Tucking into stuffed Yorkshire puddings sandwiches and then London for oysters.

Later in the series, James Marsden explores the culinary traditions of Germany, and Justin Theroux discovers his family history in Italy. There's also an emotional trip to South Korea with comedian, actor and rapper Awkwafina.

'Her Korean mother passed away when she was four and she hadn't been back to South Korea since,' says Porowski. 'At one point on our trip, she tastes traditional seaweed soup. She immediately remembers it from when she was a child when her mum used to make it.'

Porowski was born in Canada, the son of Polish immigrants, and says there's one Polish dish that will always be a taste of home for him.

'It's called leniwe or lazy pierogi, which are cheese and flour dumplings steamed until they bubble up into these beautiful little pillows,' he says. 'My parents would make them for dinner when I was a kid whenever they were going out, as a way of saying, "Sorry, we're not going to be here." They were my favourite.'

Frontier spirit

Storm clouds gather in the Yellowstone prequel

Paramount+ 1923

NEW Available: Sun 23 Feb Genre: Western
Season: 2 Episodes: 7 (released weekly)

Wealthy Montana patriarch John Dutton, played by Kevin Costner, was laid to rest at his beloved ranch last year in Season 5 of modern-day western saga Yellowstone. But the harsh realities of frontier life continue for his forebears as prequel series 1923, starring Harrison Ford and Dame Helen Mirren as Jacob and Cara Dutton, returns for a second run.

A dramatic end to the first season saw Jacob's big-game-hunter nephew Spencer (Brandon Sklenar) being separated from his new bride Alexandra (Julia Schlaepfer) after throwing her ex-fiancé Arthur over the side of a boat off the coast of Italy. And he'll face further obstacles as he attempts to return home and save the ranch.

EPIC VOYAGE

'Spencer encounters strong resistance at pretty much every turn, and deals with that the way he knows best,' says Sklenar. 'It's a lot of fun to finally take him to those places in the second season, and let the lion out of the cage.'

While Jacob and Cara eagerly await the return of war hero Spencer, will his young wife be reunited with him in Montana, as promised in her parting words shouted from the ship?

'I would love for Alex to make it to the ranch,' teases Schlaepfer. 'I hope we get to see some of her strength come out now that she's on her own.'

NETFLIX Running Point

NEW Available: Thursday
27 February Genre: Comedy
Season: 1 Episodes: 10

Kate Hudson stars in Netflix's new comedy Running Point as the newly appointed president of a world-famous basketball team.

She plays ambitious but underappreciated Isla Gordon, who is forced to take over the family business and become the boss of the Los Angeles Waves when her brother is embroiled in a scandal.

However, Isla not only has to prove her mettle to the outside world, but as the only sister in a family full of competitive brothers, she must also show her own siblings that she deserves her place at the head of the table.

'Isla is a strong female figure who's navigating a male-dominated industry, and I like that the story explores sibling dynamics, which adds depth and relatability,' says Hudson, 45, whose credits include 2001 movie Almost Famous and TV series Glee.

SIBLING RIVALRY

Isla's appointment instantly puts her at odds with her brothers Sandy and Ness, played by Drew Tarver and Scott MacArthur, who have always overlooked their sister's abilities.

Hudson, who's the daughter of actor Goldie Hawn, says the storyline mirrored her upbringing in a sports-mad household.

'I sometimes felt like I was shooting my own life story with three brothers and the only girl – that's how I grew up,' she says. 'Basketball has always been one of my favourite sports, and this show has deepened my appreciation for it.'

The series is co-created by Mindy Kaling and inspired by the story of Jeanie Buss, the CEO and controlling owner of the Los Angeles Lakers basketball team. Buss was one of the executive producers on Running Point and was keen for Hudson to take on the lead role.

'I have known Jeanie since I was a teenager, and I felt a unique connection to the character,' says Hudson. 'Jeanie's career in the male-dominated world of professional basketball is inspiring, and her willingness to let us explore a comedic version of that world was liberating.'

'The show is not a direct portrayal of her life but rather a fictionalised, humorous take on the challenges and triumphs she might face. We were able to focus on the heart and passion of a woman striving to succeed.'

Touch of Frost

David Frost's extraordinary archive of interviews gets a fascinating new airing

NEW FACTUAL

David Frost Vs

Sunday, 9pm, Sky Documentaries & Sky Showcase (box set, Sky Box Sets/NOW)

During his 50-year career, David Frost conducted more than 10,000 TV interviews with pop icons and sports stars, as well as eight British prime ministers and seven US presidents. His infamous 1977 audience with the disgraced Richard Nixon following the Watergate scandal is arguably the biggest televised political interview in history.

Now, in Sky's new series David Frost Vs, made in collaboration with his son, Sky News presenter Wilfred Frost, we get to witness some of his eye-opening archive interviews with Muhammad Ali, Jane Fonda and The Beatles, starting with a rare chat with a young Paul McCartney in 1964.

GOLDEN YEARS

'Dad died 12 years ago this summer and we wanted to celebrate his legacy,' says Wilfred, 39. 'He had a front-row seat at the most important moments as the post-war world unfolded, so this is a series about those moments in history.'

'There was a 48-year span from Dad's first interview with Paul McCartney in 1964 and the last one he did with Paul in 2012, just a few months before Dad died. There was nobody he interviewed further apart than Paul.'

The opening episode also spotlights the broadcaster's remarkable 1967 interview with John Lennon and George Harrison, who appeared on The Frost Programme to talk about taking LSD and practising transcendental meditation. There are also three particularly bizarre chat-show exchanges with John Lennon and Yoko Ono in 1968, 1969 and 1973.

'Dad had epic live music performances on his chat shows. But Hey Jude being introduced to the world on Frost on Sunday is one of the most euphoric moments in the entire series and something I didn't even know about before I started making the documentary,' says Wilfred.

'Dad did 15 interviews with The Beatles and, like everyone he interviewed, he made them feel heard. He never had an agenda or sought confrontation for the sake of it. He didn't make an interview about him – he was there to make it about the guest. He genuinely had a fascination with whoever he was talking to – and you can't fake that.'

MUSICAL HIGH

But perhaps the most extraordinary moment is the world TV premiere of Hey Jude on Frost on Sunday in 1968, which turned out to be The Beatles' last-ever TV performance.

James May's Great Explorers

Thursday, 9pm, Channel 5

Captain James Cook charted a third of the globe in his 18th-century voyages, bringing huge advances in science, geography and navigation. In this week's final episode, James May (above) delves into the life of the farmer's son who became a divisive British hero dubbed, in some parts of the world, 'Captain Crook'.

Edward: 60 Years a Prince

Saturday, 9.30pm, Channel 5

A profile of the late Queen's youngest son (above), now 60, who was ridiculed for pursuing his interest in the performing arts, and oversaw a much-mocked 1987 variation on slapstick TV game show It's a Knockout in which his royal relatives competed alongside celebrities in a charity fundraiser.

Surgeons: At the Edge of Life

Wednesday, 9pm, BBC2

The close-up surgery series returns with consultants at The Royal Infirmary of Edinburgh taking on a pioneering transplant as 21-year-old Sania, who suffers from acute pancreatitis, agrees to a high-risk op to remove her pancreas. Meanwhile, 61-year-old Ed has a procedure to remove a kidney tumour.

Vladimir Putin's response was widely criticised

A two-part documentary recalls the Kursk submarine disaster

NEW FACTUAL

Kursk: 10 Days That Shaped Putin

Tue, 9pm, Sky History & Sky Showcase (box set, Sky Box Sets/NOW)

In August 2000, shortly after Vladimir Putin was elected Russia's President, its navy was carrying out a series of training exercises in the Barents Sea. But after explosions on board, the nuclear submarine Kursk sank to the bottom of the Arctic waters with 118 submariners trapped inside.

Now, this two-part documentary shows how Putin ignored the West's offers of help for five days and then deliberately scuppered rescue missions, preferring to let the men die rather than expose his country's secrets.

'I just wanted to help him save their lives,' recalls Bill Clinton, US President at the time, who features in the documentary. 'But Putin knew that if we went down there, there were things we would learn about their technology.'

The series speaks to those on all sides of the disaster, including the families of the victims and the British, American and Norwegian operatives who tried in vain to rescue them.

'We were waiting for some information from the Russians but we had nothing,' says Commander Alan Hoskins of the Royal Navy's submarine rescue service. 'It's strange that having said, "Please help us," there wasn't an openness that followed. The Russians were just wasting time.'

COVERED UP

The documentary shows that Putin refused to speak publicly about the tragedy – and when one submariner's mother criticised the government's response live on camera, she was tranquillised in front of the world's press.

'The coverage made Putin look heartless,' says Clinton. 'I think that intensified his determination to seize control of the media.'

However, despite the incident's tragic end, many of those involved in the documentary want to ensure the victims aren't forgotten.

'They were fathers, husbands,' says Captain Mark Breor of the USS Memphis. 'Every one of those sailors has a story to be told and it should be heard.'

It gives June Squibb, 93 when this was made, her first leading role after being an actor for more than 60 years, and she shines as an elderly but fiercely determined woman on a mission.

After being caught in a phone scam, Squibb's

Thelma dodges her overly protective family (daughter Parker Posey and her husband Clark Gregg, along with kindly slacker grandson Fred Hechinger) to track down the criminals who took her money. She's aided by her cautious friend Ben (Richard Roundtree in his final role) and, with the help of his electric scooter, they dash around – at about 20mph – to nab the perps.

Shot as a typical actioner accompanied by a pulsating score, this comedy never patronises but hilariously showcases the upsides and downswings of getting older. Squibb delivers a wonderful, fully rounded character who learns that asking for help isn't the end of the road and her team-up with Roundtree makes for a cracking adventure.

Essentially, though, this is an incredibly sweet-natured film that has family and the importance of its bonds at its core. A fabulous film, it works by being both breezy and sharp as a tack. 2024, 12, 98MIN

Anchored by superb performances from Andrew Garfield and Florence Pugh, this superior weepie slickly combines elements of romantic comedy and tearjerking tragedy while jumping back and forward in time to tell its decade-spanning story. The stars anchor the choppy narrative and they keep us invested in the romance of Garfield's Tobias, a breakfast cereal marketer, and Pugh's brilliant chef Almut, from their initial meeting by chance through to the birth of their daughter (Grace Delaney) and her diagnosis with stage three ovarian cancer. Just don't expect the film's director, John Crowley (Brooklyn) and screenwriter, award-winning playwright Nick Payne, to put things in this order. 2024, 15, 107MIN

Two elite soldiers, one drafted from the West, American Levi (Miles Teller), the other from the East, Lithuanian Drasa (Anya Taylor-Joy), are sent to opposing outpost towers to guard against something gnarly in a remote, fog-shrouded gorge. The place has been protected for decades, but what's down there now wants to come up... A fun big-budget B-movie with surprisingly classy actors ably equipped to shoulder what is effectively a two-hander, this may be fairly generic but it manages to throw in a few entertaining curveballs to keep things interesting. Director Scott Derrickson (Doctor Strange, The Black Phone) keeps the visuals engaging and inventive, while maintaining just enough mystery to have you occasionally scratching your head. 2025, 15, 127MIN

BLACK COMEDY

The Banshees of Inisherin

Saturday, 9pm, C4

Writer-director Martin McDonagh's follow-up to Three Billboards Outside Ebbing, Missouri is another darkly amusing and heartbreakingly sad character drama from a modern master of shifting tones. A bit of an In Bruges (see p27) reunion, it reunites McDonagh with his debut's leads, Colin Farrell and Brendan Gleeson.

It's set in 1923 on Inisherin, a fictional island off Ireland's west coast. Farrell's Pádraic is 'one of life's good guys': dutiful keeper of farmyard animals and best friends with Gleeson's more cultured Colm. Or so he thinks.

As the film opens, Colm puts an abrupt end to their friendship for seemingly nebulous reasons. The baffled Pádraic persists, eventually leading Colm to lay down a drastic ultimatum: every time Pádraic speaks to him he'll cut off one of his own fingers with a pair of shears.

It's McDonagh's typically twisted take on the break-up movie, albeit with deep empathy for those on both sides. Farrell and Gleeson are brilliant, while Barry Keoghan lends scene-stealing support as the son of an abusive copper who befriends Pádraic. It's another wildly accomplished outing for McDonagh that's worth shouting about. 2022, 15, 114MIN

Saturday, kick-off 2.15pm, BBC1 & S4C

Cardiff coach Matt Sherratt faces a baptism of fire as he takes over as Wales' interim head coach following the departure of Warren Gatland after a record 14 successive Test match defeats.

Following a record drubbing by France and a first defeat in Italy for 18 years, Wales are bottom of the table and will need a near-miracle against Ireland to avoid a ninth successive defeat in the Six Nations.

By contrast, Ireland have a maximum 10 points from the opening two matches and are the only nation with a chance to claim the Grand Slam.

With Sam Prendergast impressing in the number 10 jersey, victory over Wales would see Simon Easterby's champions claim the Triple Crown.

Last year, Duhan van der Merwe became the first Scotland player to score a Calcutta Cup hat-trick and the powerful winger will be out to add to his career tally of six against the old enemy.

Meanwhile, England fans are still buzzing after the dramatic late win over France when Elliot Daly's try, converted by man of the match Fin Smith, secured a 26-25 victory. Steve Borthwick's options for the rest of the championship could be boosted by the imminent return of injured duo Immanuel Feyi-Waboso and George Furbank.

Turkish rider Toprak Razgatlioglu is targeting a third world title after a sensational 2024 which saw the BMW racer set a record of 13 consecutive wins. Britain's Alex Lowes, who claimed two race victories for Kawasaki in Australia last year, is switching to Bimota machinery in 2025, while his identical twin brother Sam starts a second season at Ducati. It could be a make-or-break year for six-time world champion Jonathan Rea, who finished 13th in the standings in his first season with Pata Yamaha – the first winless campaign of his career. 'It was a dark year in many ways,' says the 38-year-old, who considered retirement from the sport. 'But I want to right the wrongs.'

Italy's Paolo
Garbisi

Italy v France

Sunday, kick-off 3pm, ITV1

Last year's fixture saw a thrilling contest finish 13-13, the first draw in the sides' Six Nations encounters, as Italy were denied a first championship victory in Paris when Paolo Garbisi's injury-time penalty hit the post. The fly-half has impressed again so far this year, along with Tommaso Allan, who's currently scored the most points in the championship (31). The Azzurri have defeated France twice before in Rome, in 2011 and 2013.

For Les Bleus, Louis Biale-Biarrey is currently the leading try scorer in this year's tournament, having scored a brace in each of the opening two rounds, while superstar Antoine Dupont will want to be back to his inspirational best after a disappointing display against England.

LIVE BOXING

Daniel Dubois v Joseph Parker

Sat, 4pm, Sky Sports Box Office, TNT Sports Box Office & DAZN

After stopping Anthony Joshua in five rounds in September, Britain's Daniel Dubois defends his IBF heavyweight world title against New Zealand's former champion Joseph Parker in Riyadh. Parker has earned a shot at the title thanks to a run of four victories, including wins over Deontay Wilder and Zhilei Zhang. Also on the card, Artur Beterbiev will defend his undisputed light-heavyweight crown in a mouth-watering rematch with fellow Russian Dmitry Bivol.

LIVE FOOTBALL

England v Spain

Wednesday, kick-off 8pm, ITV4

The Lionesses play their first home fixture of 2025 on Wednesday when England face Spain in a repeat of the 2023 World Cup final at Wembley. It's the nations' first meeting since Spain became world champions in Sydney with a 1-0 victory. Sarina Wiegman's squad for the Nations League Group A3 clash includes several players from that match including Lucy Bronze, Ella Toone and Mary Earps, who memorably saved a penalty.

Champions Trophy

Saturday, play starts 9am, Sky Sports Cricket & Sky Sports Main Event

Lahore's Gaddafi Stadium is the venue as England take on rivals Australia in their opening match of the 50-overs tournament – and Jos Buttler's men will need to improve their performances following an ODI series whitewash in India. Somerset batter Tom Banton has replaced an injured Jacob Bethell in Brendon McCullum's squad which also faces Afghanistan at the same venue on Wednesday.

KIDS WATCHLIST

Great shows for young viewers (from tots to teens) on linear TV and streaming

Cooking with the Gills

Saturday & Sunday, 8.30am, Milkshake! on Five

It's time to get back into the kitchen, under the guidance of farmer JB Gill and his family, Chloe, Ace and Chiara. If you're an enthusiastic young cook, grab your apron and, with the help of a responsible grown-up, why not take your turn to get tea on the table?

In the opening episodes of the new series, we're shown how to rustle up a tasty cheesy leek and potato pie by junior chef Olly. And how about rounding off dinner with a delicious apple crumble, as demonstrated by Jaina? Yummy!

The Thundermans: Undercover

Available now, Paramount+

In this new spin-off sequel to The Thundermans, Thunder Twins Phoebe (above) and Max are sent undercover to work on a new threat in Secret Shore – and they bring younger sister Chloe with them so she can work on her superhero talent, naturally!

Can the siblings keep their identities secret, and help thwart the evil plans of mysterious villain Mastermind?

Adolescence

Stephen Graham stars in a tense drama about a murder accusation

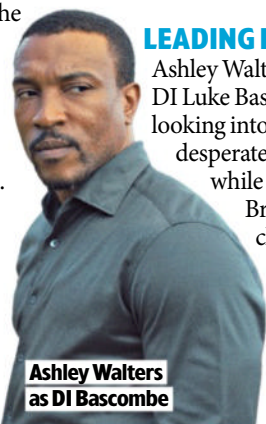

The devastating fallout when a teenage boy is arrested following a shocking death is brought into the spotlight in Netflix's four-part drama Adolescence.

Airing from 13 March, the psychological thriller stars Stephen Graham as Eddie Miller, whose 13-year-old son Jamie (Owen Cooper) is accused of murdering a girl who attends his school. As the Millers' lives are thrown into turmoil and they and the police have to establish what really happened, the innovative series, directed by Boiling Point's Philip Barantini, sees events play out in real time and each episode, which is shown from different perspectives, is filmed in one continuous shot.

LEADING ROLES

Ashley Walters co-stars as DI Luke Bascombe, who is looking into the case and is desperate to get to the truth, while Erin Doherty is Briony Ariston, the clinical psychologist assessing Jamie. Faye Marsay, Christine Tremarco, Mark Stanley and Jo Hartley also star.

'Eddie's just a normal father but, suddenly, his whole world is rocked by something that his son is accused of,' says Graham, who co-created and co-wrote the series with award-winning writer Jack Thorne.

'The idea came as we've seen an epidemic of knife crime among young lads up and down the country. And for me, there were certain instances that really stuck out where young boys were killing young girls. What's going on?'

WHAT'S NEXT FOR...

Ellie Simmonds

In ITV1's documentary Ellie Simmonds: Should I Have Children?, the Paralympic swimmer will share her dilemma over whether to start a family, as she speaks to medical experts and parents.

Tahar Rahim

The actor will portray a killer who is set to testify against his fellow criminals in Sky Atlantic's thriller Prisoner, but he and his prison-officer escort (Izuka Hoyle) must go on the run after their transport convoy is ambushed.

Kiefer Sutherland

Sky Cinema's comedy film Tinsel Town, airing this Christmas, sees the actor star as an egotistical Hollywood idol who comes to the UK to resurrect his career but ends up appearing in a village panto.

Coming Back

Filming is under way on the third run of BBC1's Belfast-set crime drama Blue Lights, as response officer Grace (Siân Brooke, right) and co-investigate shady figures behind organised crime. Cathy Tyson and Michael Smiley join the cast.
